Found Landscapes

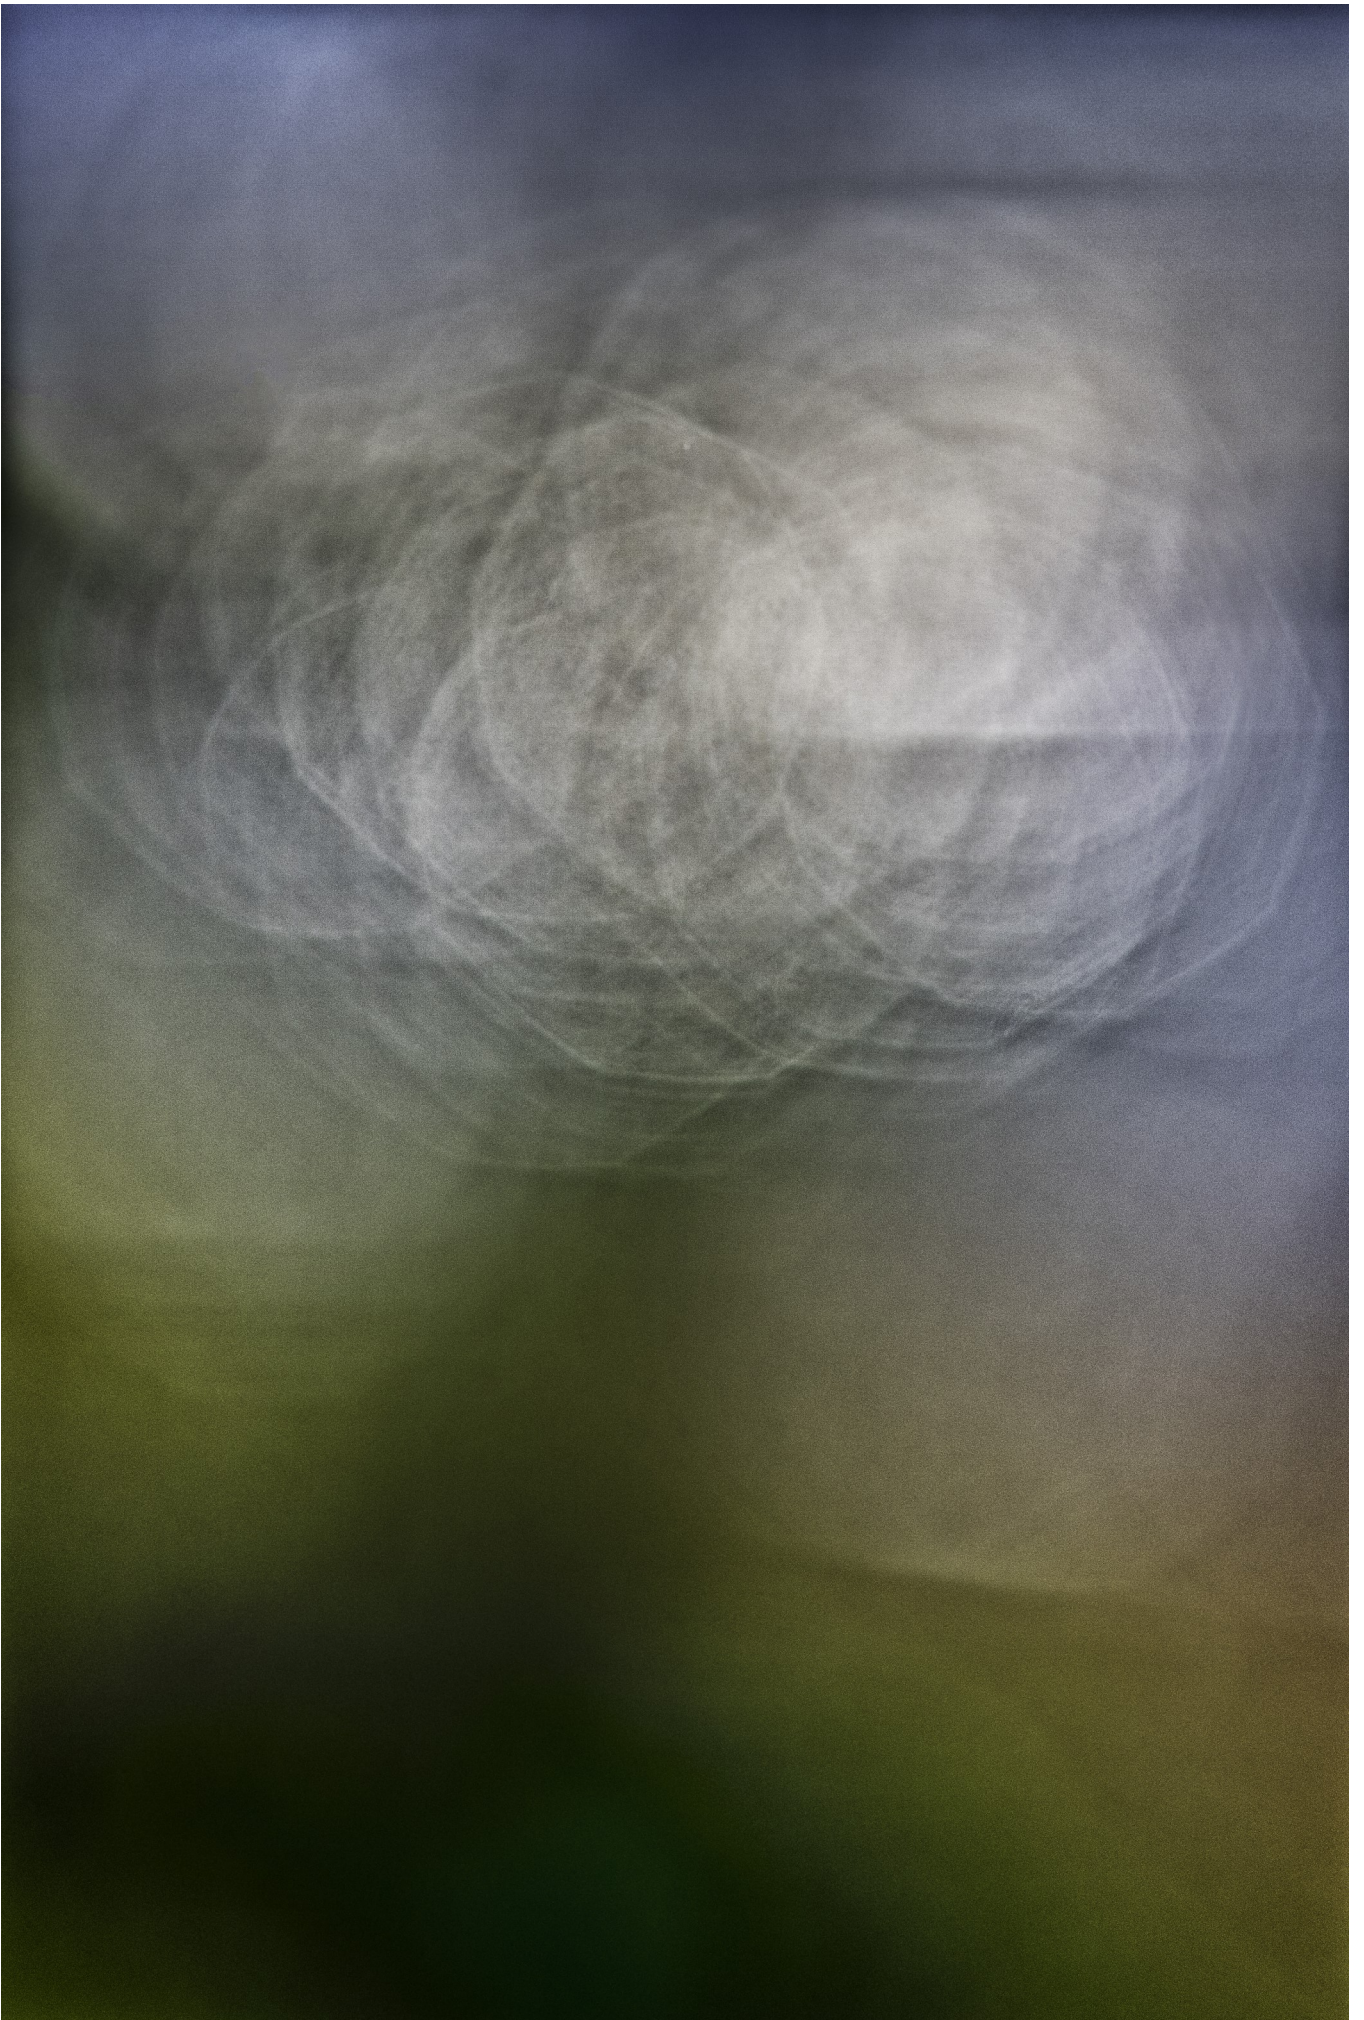

By Simon Pearce

Its all about scale. We're used to landscape photography focussing on the wide vista, the big picture , the epic scale, these series of images are landscapes created in the mind and blurred unfocussed image on a sensor.

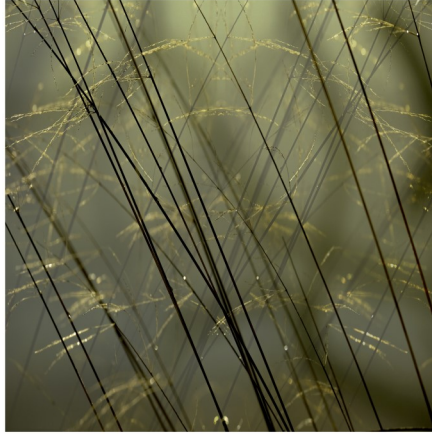

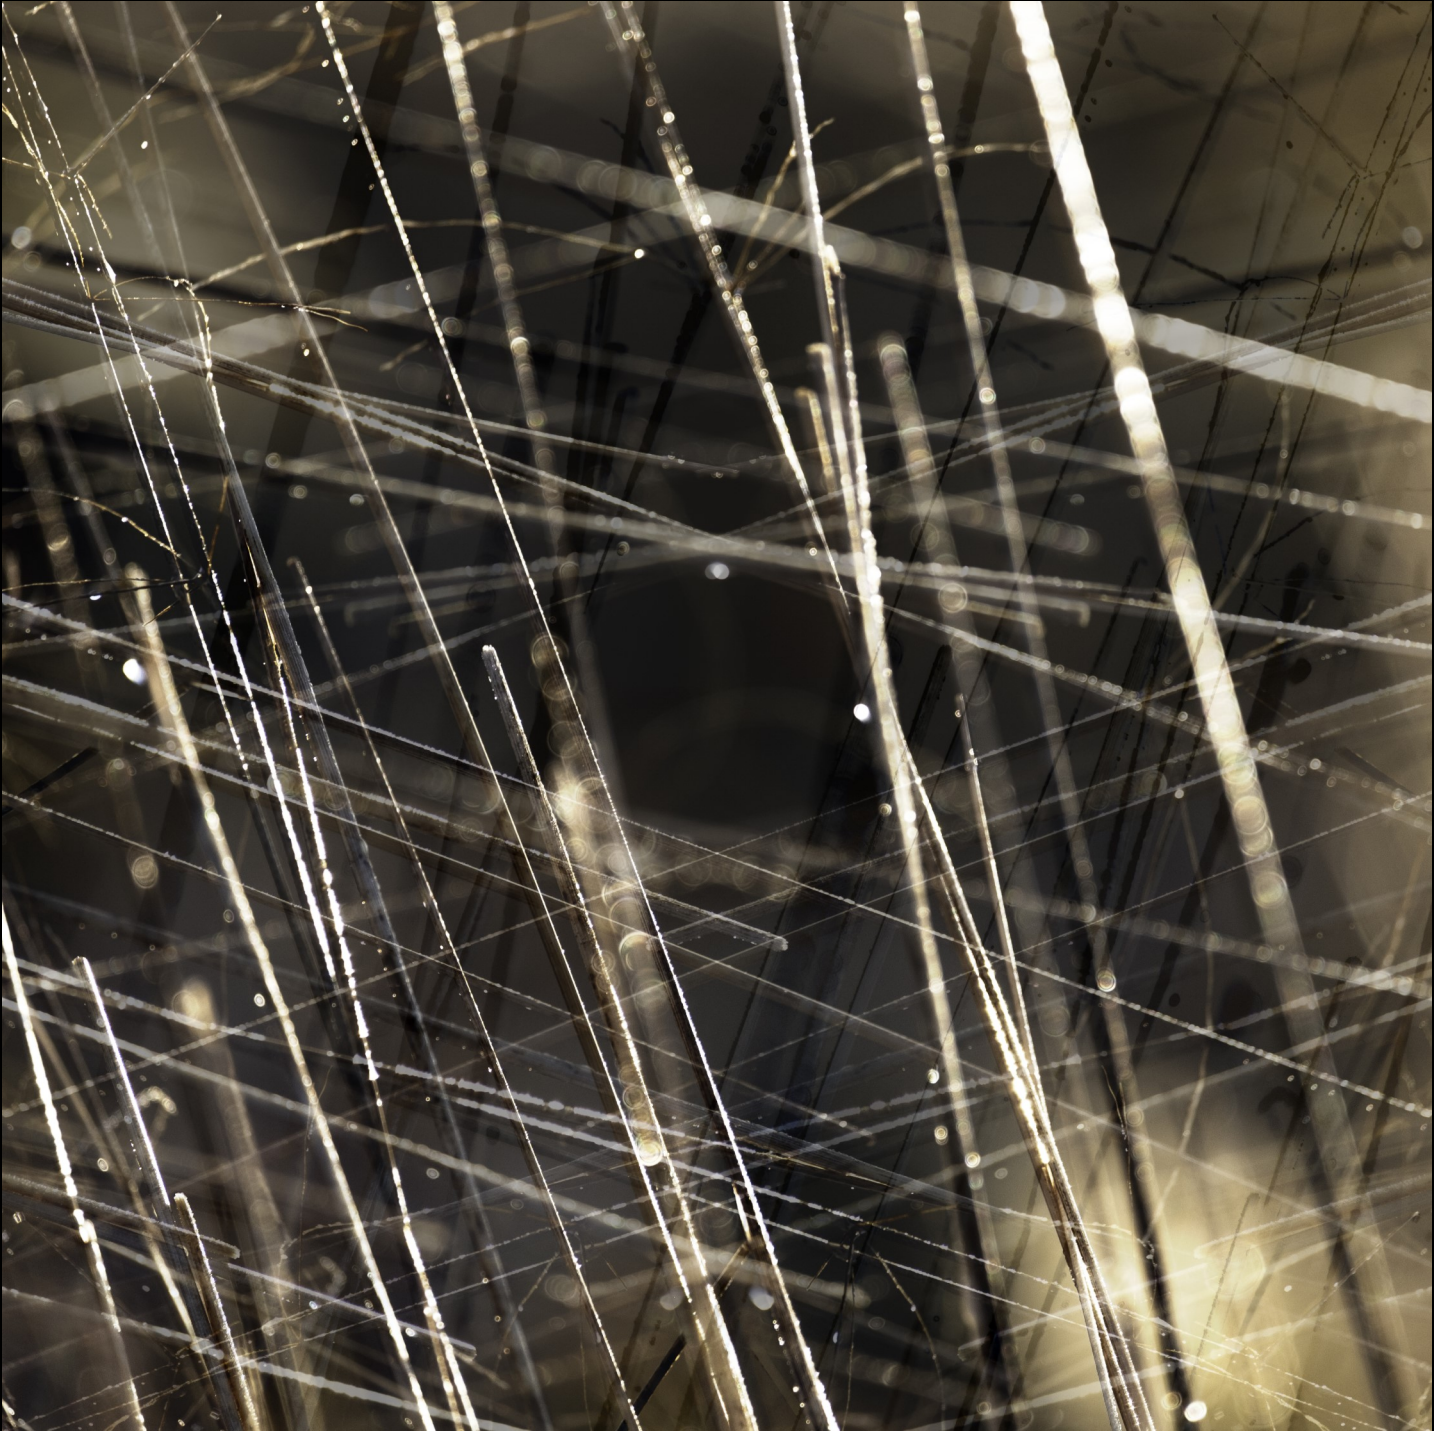

Grass

A series of images taken on one of those special early spring morning dog walks. The warm spring day welcoming the low sun in the calm hour before the start of the working day.

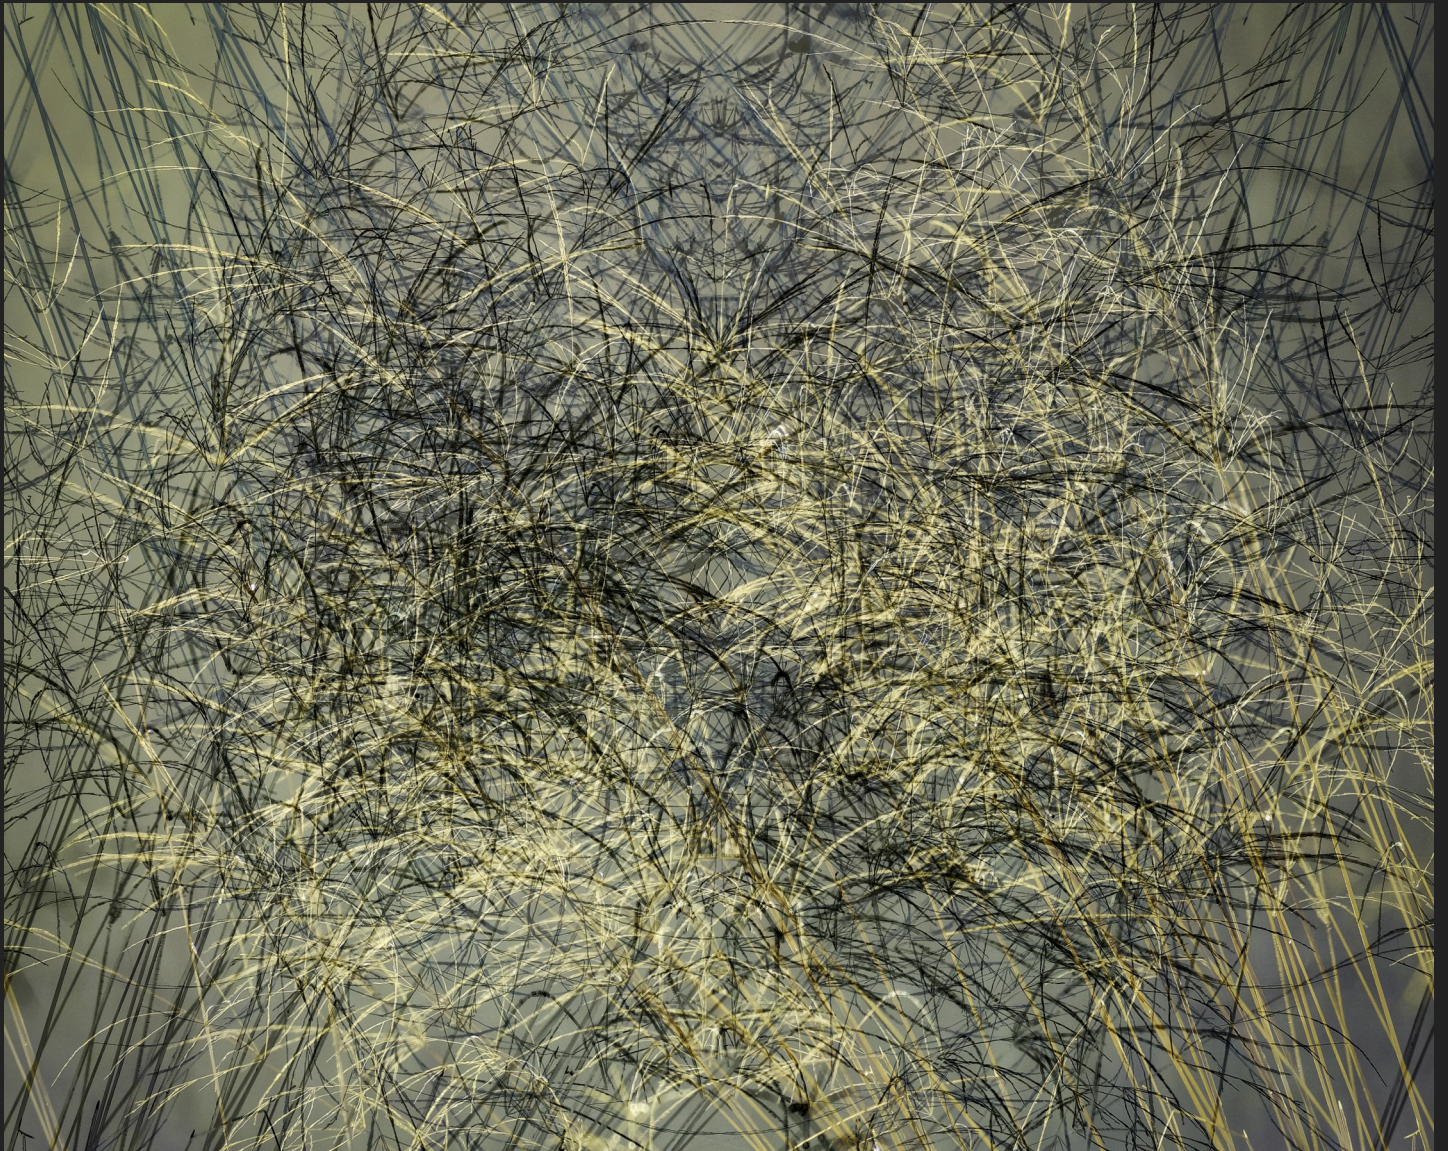

The Ghost boats of Dungeness

In the south eastern corner of England, where the sky meets the sea, wooden fishing boats slowly decay and fade back into the landscape.

Simon Pearce is a fine-art photographer and environmental consultant. My main job is as you would expect is on the technical side and does not lend itself to a huge amount of creative expression. That's where my photography comes in.
